

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

CONTENIDO

VOLUME 219 No. 3, MARCH 2011

- 34 Taming the Wild.
A fox can be man's best friend. All it takes is the right's genes.
Evan Ratliff.
Photographs by Vincent J. Musi.
- 60 Enter the Age of Man.
We remove mountains, raise supercities, transform our planet.
Elizabeth Kolbert.
- 86 Ancient Swimmers.
Fish that date to dinosaur days get rare human visitors.
Carolyn Butler.
Photographs Laurent Ballesta.
- 94 Kung Fu Kingdom.
Near Shaolin Temple, old masters train wannabe movie stars.
Peter Gwin.
Photographs Fritz Hoffmann.
- 114 Gold Dusters.
They're pollinators. And they're ready for their close-up.
Jennifer S. Holland.
Photographs Mark W. Moffett.
- 132 The Ultimate Alaska Trek.
What makes a world-class hiker cry? Ask Andrew Skurka.
Dan Koepfel.
Photographs by Michael Christopher Brown.

DEPARTMENTS

- 4 Editor's Note.
- 6 Nat Geo Channel.
- 10 Letters.

12 Your Shot.

14 Vision of Earth.

POPULATION

How Big Is Seven Billion?

In years. It's half the universe's age. In text messages. It's the U. S. total every 30 hours.

TECHNOLOGY

Solar Magellan.

A European crew aims to be the first to sail around the world in a sun-powered ship.

HISTORY

Peace Corps Rising.

As the service group celebrates its golden anniversary, enlistment is up.

SPACE

Lunar Probe.

Bouncing laser beams have created a new map of the moon's pocked surface.

CONSERVATION

In the Pink.

With wet cloths and mattress-padded trucks, Bolivians save 20 trapped pink river dolphins.

THE BIG IDEA

30 Grow Your Own Organs.

One day, people who need a body part may be able to send some cells to a lab.

148 Explore Journal.

151 Inside Geographic.

Flashback.

ON THE COVER

Wild foxes in Ontario's Algonquin Provincial Park are so used to people that they beg for food —and sometimes pose for a portrait

Photo by Greg Schneider.