

NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC

CONTENIDO

VOLUME 220 No. 1, JULY 2011

- 40 Cleopatra, Is That You?
Archaeologists search for the true face —and the burial place— of the “world’s first celebrity”.
Chip Brown.
- 64 Not Too Late for Polar Bears.
Their frozen hunting ground is shrinking. But bear – watchers haven’t given up hope.
Susan McGrath.
Photographs by Florian Schulz.
- 76 Baghdad after the Storm.
An Iraq war vet finds music in the streets and fuel shortages, rational fears and new hope.
Brian Turner.
Photographs by Lynsey Addario.
- 102 Young, Angry, and Wired.
In the Middle East a generation in waiting can wait no more.
Jeffrey Bartholet.
Photographs by Michael Christopher Brown.
- 108 Food Ark.
Preserving heirloom seeds and breeds is crucial if we are to feed our hungry world.
Charles Siebert.
Photographs by Jim Richardson.
- 132 Eat, Hike, Swim, Raise Cows.
Portugal’s first — and only — national park is a combination of natural wonders and local lifestyles.
Tom Mueller.
Photographs by Peter Essick.

DEPARTMENTS

- 4 Editor's Note.
- 6 Letters.
- 8 National Geographic on TV.
- 11 Explores Journal.

12 VISIONS

- 18 Your Shot.

- 21 Photo Journal.

24 NOW

Pterosaur and Egg.

A fossils offers a new clue to flying vertebrate enigmas.

Animal Z's.

Why do sleep times vary?

Real Angry Birds.

They're not just a figment of a video game's imagination.

Crumpled Change.

When euros arrive, old coins get bent.

22 Pounds of Fruit.

That's one example of what the average American wastes a year.

Jackpots for Amateurs.

Treasure hunters find ancient booty.

34 NEXT

Elevator to Space.

The stuff of science fiction, it may one day be a reality.

Farewell to Guinea Worm.

A straw filter could help end the painful disease.

A Better Brain Map.

Scientists are decoding the neural mazes of our white matter.

144 NG Connect.

The Moment.

Flashback.

ON THE COVER

The real Cleopatra's face is a mystery. Our artist used a model who shares the ruler's.

Art by Sam Weber.