

NEW SCIENTIST

CONTENIDO

VOLUME 208 No. 2788, OCTOBER 2010

NEWS

- 6 UPFRONT
Stem cell trial to cure blindness. North Korea reveals uranium enrichment plant.
- 8 THIS WEEK
Antimatter's dark side.
Prosthetic retina allows blind mice to see. Test reveals criminal's age from crime-scene blood. Cloud of photons behaves as one. New evidence in supersolid debate. Religion as a social enforcer.
Two mysteries, one solution.
- 10 FIELD NOTES
Environmentally friendly trawl fishing.
- 18 IN BRIEF
Red wine each day keeps diabetes at bay. Extragalactic planet found. Comet caught throwing snowballs. T rex's big butt.
- 21 TECHNOLOGY
Glowing trees light the night. Robots read their world. Radar hunts bomber in a crowd.

OPINION

- 5 EDITORIAL
The quest for stronger communities may harm the individual.
- 26 Drug sense.
If politicians are brave enough to defy the media, a rational drugs policy will prove popular, argues Dick Taverne.
- 27 One minute with...Chris Palmer,
Trade trickery by a veteran wildlife film producer.
- 28 LETTERS
BPA safety. Let's cooperate.
- 30 The long hunt for gravity's waves.
We need to see science as it's really done to learn its deepest lessons, says Harry Collins.

FEATURES

32 COVER STORY

Survival of the suspicious

Why we fill the world with gods and monsters.

38 Cloud power.

A bold idea could help us harvest a remarkable new source of energy.

42 Masters of magnetism.

Birds' amazing feat of navigation explained.

46 Born scared.

Do we start out in life marked by the traumas inflicted on our parents?

CULTURELAB

50 Mindful of the body.

Could consciousness be evolution's gift is one of the key questions in Antonio Damasio's latest book, Self Comes to Mind.

51 Will corporate control win out over anarchy as the internet develops? The sun's story, from beginning to end. Exotic adventurers and the hunt for species.

54 Curvy inner space. Love and llamas.

REGULARS

28 Enigma

64 Feedback

Dracula dust.

65 The Last Word

Caterpillar march.

56 Jobs & Careers.

Coming next week...

The new Neanderthals

Our "brutish" cousins are ready for a makeover.

Lord of the rings.

Saturn is a great model for the early solar system.