

NEW SCIENTIST

CONTENIDO

VOLUME 209 No. 2802, MARCH, 5 2011

CONTENTS

- 8 Primordial Pac-Man.
The oil droplet experiments that hint at life's origins.
- 36 COVER STORY
Cosmic extremes.
The universe's extreme performers may be closer than you think.
- 42 COVER STORY
Men versus women.
Science knows the real differences between the sexes.
- NEWS
- 6 UPFRONT
HIV treatment stops virus at the door. South Korea's balloon-borne messages.
- 8 THIS WEEK
Antarctic ice may have survived a warming climate. "Locked-in" and happy. Is gravity left-handed? Cystic therapy clears lungs.
- INSIGHT
- 10 Complexity theory helps predict revolutions.
- 22 IN BRIEF
The earliest Alaskan. Fertiliser from space. Newborn mouse heart regenerates itself.
- TECHNOLOGY
- 25 Crowdsourced translating helps Lybyans. Smart grid agents manage your energy.
- OPINION
- 5 EDITORIAL
Our laws on outer space need an update.
- 30 Dictatorship.com.
The internet can be as much a tool for repression as for democratization, warns Evgeny Morozov.

31 One minute with... Benno Nigg.
The man who helped design David Beckham's boots

32 LETTERS
Statistical traps. Wiping out BSE.

34 Cooking up a new storm.
Nathan Myhrvold worked alongside Stephen Hawking, was tech chief at Microsoft and is now a master chef.

FEATURES

36 Cosmic extremes.
(see left)

42 Men versus women.
(see below left).

46 Back to the moon with Google.
The first lunar missions of the online age will big cash prizes from the internet giant.

INSTANT EXPERT

Mass extinctions.
All you need to know about life's greatest calamities in our eight-page pull-out guide.

CULTURELAB

50 Reviews.
Kingpin is a real-life thriller that shows criminal hackers in their true colours.

51 Forget you not.
A year exploring memory's tricks makes for weird, smart, funny reading.

52 Quantum history.
From Planck to Feynman and back. PLUS Spook normality. Indian geeks.

REGULARS

32 Enigma

64 Feedback
Dead fishes' emotional sense.

65 The Last Word
Sound out of water.

