COVER STORY

- 38 Cosmic Blueprint of Life.
Chemical reactions between the stars may have seeded Earth with the raw materials for life. They may have done the same throughout the universe.
Andrew Grant.
- 46 Is Anybody Out There?
Four top astrobiologists talk candidly about the latest breakthroughs in the hunt for another living world-and fantasize about what they could do if someone gave them a trillion dollars to find it.
- 50 The Bionic Man.
Motivated by his own double amputation 28 years ago, MIT biophysicist Hugh Herr has taken prosthetic pegs to an astonishing new level of functionality and realism. Next up: artificial limbs controlled by the body's own nerves.
Adam Piore.
- 58 Big Game Theory.
Physicists crack the code for what makes a great poker player: math skills, a grasp of probability theory, the ability to spot subtle patterns, and enormous patience.
Jennifer Ouellette.
- 64 Reckless Medicine.
Our medical system suffers from a frightening lack of reliable information about which treatments are safe and effective, experts warn. Some companies are happy to keep it that way.
Jeanne Lenzer and Shannon Brownlee.
- 6 Contributors.
- 8 Editor's Note
- 9 Mail.
- 10 Data.
America's armed forces go green, worms that live on ice, renegade planets, bedbugs and other parasitic charmers, lab-grown lungs, putting Einstein to the test, and more.

- 22 Five Questions for Jesse Rissman.
What it takes to read a mind.
- 24 Hot Science
Best new books and TV, plus rocking scientists and a museum of flight.
- 26 Vital Signs.
A med student's naïve misconception nearly derails a patient's diagnosis.
H. Lee Kagan.
- 28 The Brain.
Why a simple math problem can trigger a traffic jam in your head.
Carl Zimmer.
- 30 Star Fields.
On the trail of dust devils: little cousins of the great sandstorms that sculpt the surface of Mars.
Dava Sobel.
- 35 Destination Science.
Nevada's Red Rock Canyon provides a lesson in the earth's multilayered history-and a welcome respite from the crowds of Las Vegas.
Rebecca Coffey.
- 80 20 Things You Didn't Know About Language.
