

DISCOVER

CONTENIDO

VOLUME 32 No. 3, APRIL 2011

- 32 Crunching the Universe.
New sky surveys will catalog billions of astronomical objects. To digest all that data, scientists are turning to...well, just about everybody.
Preston Lerner.
- 40 The Fall and Rise of Douglas Prasher.
His work revolutionized biology, but he got no share of the eventual Nobel glory. The rocky career of Douglas Prasher offers a lesson in what it takes to succeed in modern science.
Yudhjit Bhattacharjee.
- 48 Silent Warrior.
Neuroscientists are trying to build a helmet that can read and transmit a soldier's thoughts. The U.S. Army is betting $6.3 million that they can do it.
Adam Piore.
- 56 III Wind Blowing.
Each year, thousands of tons of mercury and other contaminants waft from Asian factories across the Pacific. Global winds make one nation's pollution problem everyone's problem.
David Kirby.
- 66 The DISCOVER Interview: Lynn Margulis.
Minimally Are humans really amalgams of bacteria? Is AIDS really a form of syphilis? One noted researcher thinks so.
Dick Teresi.
- 4 Mail.
- 5 Contributors.
- 6 Editor's Note.
- 8 Data.
Fossil treasures from a Los Angeles construction site, a gold mine-turned-science lab, Bronze Age brain surgery, the tree that secures our shorelines, lessons from a scandal, an implantable brain scanner, smart bandages, super-lightning, and more.
- 20 Five Questions for Sada Mire.
A Somali archaeologist discovers prehistoric rock paintings-and a recipe for peace-in the strife-torn country she fled as a child.

Amy Barth.

22 Hot Science.

Best new books and film. Plus dinos in New York and Web comics you should be reading.

24 The Brain.

Brain-injured patients who lose their past often also lose their future—a clue to how we time-travel in our minds.

Carl Zimmer.

28 Vital Signs.

A 6-year-old girl can speak at home—but goes mute everywhere else.

Mark Cohen.

30 Future Tech.

Computers could make driving idiot-proof, if we'd just let them.

David H. Freedman.

80 20 Things You Didn't Know About DNA.

Kirsten Weir.

On the Cover.

Illustration by Viktor Koen.