

THE SCIENTIST

CONTENIDO

VOLUMEN 26 No. 8, AUGUST 2012

FEATURES

- 26 Replacement Parts.
To cope with a growing shortage of hearts. Livers and lungs suitable for transplant, some scientist are genetically engineering pigs, while others are growing organs in the lab.
Ed Yong.
- 32 Whiter Science Publishing?
As we stand on the brink of a new scientific age, how researchers should best communicate their findings and innovations is hotly debated in the publishing trenches.
- 43 Best Places to Work in Academia, 2012.
On the 10th anniversary of The Scientist's survey of life science academics, institutions are contending with tighter budgets and larger administrative staffs, while working to sustain and inspire their researchers.
The Scientist Staff.

DEPARTMENTS

- 13 From the Editorial
Survival of the Fittest (to print).
Science publishing is locked in an evolutionary arms race as it edges further into the digital age.
Mary Beth Aberlin.
- 15 Notebook
The Stuff of Nightmares; Island Disease; Some Like it Cold; A Scientist Emerges.
- 22 Critic at Large.
Predatory Publishing.
Overzealous, exploitative open-access advocates threaten the credibility of scholarly publishing.
Jeffrey Beall.
- 24 Critic at Large.
Bring On the Transparency Index.
Grading journals on how well they share information with readers will help deliver accountability to an industry that often lacks it.
Adam Marcus and Ivan Oransky.

- 25 Modus Operandi.
Milling Magic.
Ion beams carve slices in frozen cells, giving biologists an interior view.
Ruth Williams.
- 50 The Literature
G-quadruplexes exist in vivo; chemo-kines guide development of the lymph system; species-specific gene profiling in the cortex of humans and mice.
- 52 Profile.
Fly Guy.
For Michael Dickinson, Drosophila are more than winged gene holders — they're sophisticated systems for translating sensory information into flight instructions.
Karen Hopkin.
- 55 Scientist to Watch.
Megan Carey.
Cristina Luiggi.
- 57 Lab Tools
Proteome Portraits.
Using mass spectrometry to study the proteome.
Sabrina Richards.
- 60 Lab Tools.
Lipids in the Spotlight.
Using mass spectrometry to study the lipidome.
Carina Storrs.
- 63 Careers.
In Times of Trouble.
Weathering stress without derailing your career.
Kerry Grens.
- 66 Reading Frames.
Life (Re)cycle.
Death breeds life in the world's most diverse and abundant group of animals.
Bernd Heinrich.
- Capsule Reviews.
Annie Gottlieb.
- 76 Foundations.
Painting the Protein Atomic, 1961.
Sabrina Richards.
