

THE SCIENTIST

CONTENIDO

VOLUMEN 26 No. 9, SEPTEMBER 2012

FEATURES

- 28 A Nose for Touch.
The remarkable ability of the star-nosed mole to interpret its surroundings through touch is yielding clues about mammalian sensory processing in general.
Kenneth C. Catania.
- 34 Pleasant to the Touch.
Scientists hope an understanding of nerve fibers responsive only to pleasant touch will give insight into the role the sense plays in social bonding.
- 40 Missing Touch.
Bionic fingers. Rewired nerves. Science fiction becomes reality as scientists attempt to give prosthetics a sense of touch.
Megan Scudellari.

DEPARTMENTS

- 12 From the Editorial
Sense and Sensibility.
Why is tactile perception so fundamental to life?
Mary Beth Aberlin.
- 16 Notebook
Good Vibrations; Down and Dirty; Get a Whiff of This; Gifted in Science.
- 24 Thought Experiment.
The Pliable Brain.
Altered touch perception in deaf people may reveal individual differences in brain plasticity.
Christina Karns.
- 26 Critic at Large.
Stress Tests.
Judiciously applied pressure could benefit the scientific system by providing an opportunity for renewal.
H. Steven Wiley.
- 27 Modus Operandi.
The Inside Scoop.
Probing cells with nanometer scale electrodes.
Ruth Williams.

- 48 The Literature
Circadian clocks and waves draw microglia to brain injuries; flu protein impersonates histone.
- 50 Profile.
Taking the Long View.
In exploring how embryos take shape, John Wallingford has identified a key pathway involved in vertebrate development — and human disease.
Karen Hopkin.
- 53 Scientist to Watch.
Kartik Chandran.
Jef Akst.
- 55 Lab Tools
Stemming the Toxic Tide.
How to screen for toxicity using stem cells.
Kelly Rae Chi.
- 58 Lab Tools.
Enter the Third Dimension.
Cell culture goes 3-D with devices that better mimic in vivo conditions.
Amber Dance.
- 63 Bio Business.
Sharing Made Easy.
Biological resource centers are bigger and better than ever before, storing and distributing shared reagents, plasmids, and more.
Megan Scudellari.
- 66 Reading Frames.
A Story Biological.
Using scientific information as narrative can be a powerful way to communicate.
John Coates.
- Capsule Reviews.
Annie Gottlieb.
- 80 Foundations.
Painting the Protein Atomic, 1961.
Sabrina Richards.
- IN EVERY ISSUE
- 11 Contributors
- 14 Speaking of Science.
- 70 The Guide.
- 76 Recruitment.
